The main tasks were: First of all, the path of large-scale political, economic and social reforms initiated by the First President Islam Karimov will be resolutely and consistently pursued.

Secondly, it was noted that special attention should be paid to the priority task of preserving and strengthening the harmony of nations and citizens, mutual respect and kindness in our country.

Third, it will be a priority to make a broader decision in our lives about the sense of justice that our people have always valued and put above all else.

Fourth, the implementation of such an important principle and priority as ensuring the sustainable growth of our economy will remain a strategic task for the head of state. First of all, we must deepen our work on reforming and liberalizing the economy, accelerating the work begun on the structural transformation of its sectors and industries.

Fifth, the effectiveness of the economic reforms and social changes we are implementing is measured primarily by the extent to which they affect the material well-being and welfare of the population, its living standards and quality of life. Sixth, constant communication with the population, taking concrete measures to implement its legal requirements, requests and suggestions was declared a priority. Now a system of reporting on the activities of not only the government, but also the relevant ministries and departments, business associations, as well as governors in this area will be introduced and their work will be evaluated accordingly.
